

The Standards of Lending Practice

Business Customers

The voice of banking

THE UKCARDS
ASSOCIATION

Introduction

The Standards of Lending Practice for business customers, which replace the micro enterprise provisions of the Lending Code, are composed of nine main areas. These set out standards of good practice in relation to lending to business customers, across the lifecycle from the product design phase to the initial offering of the product through to dealing with customers who find themselves in financial difficulty.

The Principles for Lending outline the overarching areas of focus for Registered Firms and underpinning these are the more detailed Standards of Lending Practice which are broken down into the following topics:

- Product information
- Product sale
- Declined applications¹
- Product execution
- Credit monitoring
- Financial difficulty
- Portfolio management
- Vulnerability

There is also a separate section on Governance and Oversight, which sets out the framework Registered Firms should have in place to ensure that the Standards are implemented and operate effectively.

The Standards represent a move away from its predecessor, which was focused more on compliance with provisions than customer outcomes. This acknowledges that there may be several ways to achieve the right customer outcome and that the best solution in a specific situation may differ depending on the customer's individual circumstances. This avoids Firms having to rigidly follow a set of rules which may not always be appropriate and allow for flexibility. The LSB's oversight regime will recognise this and will focus on how Firms are demonstrating that they are meeting the outcomes.

Each section contains both a 'customer outcome' and an overall statement of how a Firm will achieve this; both are supported by a more detailed set of standards to enable Firms to demonstrate how they achieve the desired outcome.

Application

The protections of the Standards of Lending Practice apply to businesses/organisations, which at the point of lending:

- have an annual turnover of no more than £6.5 million in its last financial year (exclusive of VAT and other turnover related taxes), and;
- which does not have a complex ownership structure (for example, businesses with overseas, multiple, or layered ownership structures).

¹ Also referred to as 'unsuccessful applications' under the Small Business, Enterprise and Employment Act 2015.

Firms which agree to adhere to the Standards should ensure that any third party acting on their behalf adheres to these in relation to any products or services which are covered by the Standards of Lending Practice. However, where a customer is referred to a third party because the Firm has declined a customer's application, the extent of a Firm's liability for ensuring the customer receives the protections provided by the Standards is limited to the point at which the customer is transferred/handed off to the third party.

Products covered under the Standards of Lending Practice

For the purposes of release one, the Standards apply to products offered for business lending purposes covered under the Lending Code: overdraft, loan, credit card and chargecard products. The Standards do not apply to trade loans or invoice financing.

Asset based, asset backed, peer-to-peer lending and other forms of lending offered to business customers are under consideration for future releases.

Alignment with statutory regulation

Registered Firms offering products to sole traders or partnerships may be regulated by the Financial Conduct Authority (FCA) for this type of customer and, depending on the type and value of the borrowing may already be required to adhere to the Consumer Credit Sourcebook (CONC). For completeness, the Standards of Lending Practice may include where relevant, references to other legislation or statutory rules such as the Data Protection Act 1998 (DPA). The Governance and Oversight section acknowledges that the FCA's Senior Management Arrangements, Systems and Controls (SYSC) requires Firms to have adequate governance arrangements in place.

The intention is that the Standards of Lending Practice for business customers provide an overview of the entire lending process but adherence to any legislative or statutory requirement referenced is outside of the LSB's oversight regime. In the event that legislation or statutory rules which replicate or conflict with the wording of the Standards comes into force, the relevant legislation or statutory rules will supersede its content.

Terminology

Any references in the Standards of Lending Practice to customer or customers applies to a business or businesses from the point at which it enters into discussions with a Registered Firm regarding a relevant lending product.

Statement of Lender and Borrower Responsibilities

A separate one-page customer facing document has been developed to sit alongside the Standards of Lending Practice and is available on Registered Firms' websites, customers may wish to read the Standards alongside this document.

Principles for lending

Application

Below are the overarching principles that Registered Firms which lend, and/or undertake associated debt collection activities, to business customers should use to govern their relationship with them.

The Principles for Lending and Standards of Lending Practice apply to:

- Overdraft, loan (excluding trade loans), credit card and chargecard products.
- Registered Firms and any third parties that retail and service the lending products listed above on behalf of a Registered Firm.

Registered Firms will ensure that their business customers:

- a. Are told about the products the Firm has to offer and provided with clear information to enable them to choose a product that meets their needs.
- b. Are provided with information about how to apply for the different products a Firm offers; what the application process entails and any other requirements a Firm may have.
- c. Are aware of the high level basis on which the Firm will make its decision to lend to them. If the customer's application is declined the primary reason for this will be provided.
- d. Are aware that they have the right to appeal a Firm's decision to decline their application and, where appropriate, have the option to be referred to alternative sources of finance.
- e. Will be provided with clear and understandable documentation which sets out their obligations under their agreement with the Firm.
- f. Are aware of the options open to them if they anticipate, or a Firm becomes aware, that they will have or are experiencing difficulty in repaying their borrowing.
- g. Will know what happens when they have repaid their borrowing or no longer require it.

Product information

Customer outcome: all product information presented to business customers will be clear, fair and not misleading and enable the customer to understand the key features of the product, such as the interest rates, fees and charges that apply.

Firms will achieve this: with systems and controls at product design, financial promotion and product review stages that assess product performance and ensure product information is clear, fair and not misleading.

1. Firms should ensure that all financial promotions, across all channels, are clear, fair and not misleading. This includes material provided to comparison websites.
2. Firms should ensure that employees/agents are trained and knowledgeable about the range of products, across all channels, on offer to customers.
3. Firms should ensure that customers are provided with clear and understandable information which enables them to decide whether the product they are considering applying for meets their needs and is appropriate for the type of business they are engaged in.
4. Firms should ensure that the customer's consent is sought prior to sharing any business or personal details with a third party or an alternative source of finance. [DPA]
5. Firms should ensure that clear information is provided as to how the product on offer works: its key features and the associated costs for example, charges, interest and any breakage or early repayment fees/costs.

Product sale

Customer outcome: business customers will only be provided with a product that is deemed affordable and which meets the requirements of the business.

Firms will achieve this: with systems and controls that ensure the sales process, training and incentives promote the right behaviours and direct their employees, or their agents, to deliver the right customer outcome.

1. Firms should ensure that customers are provided with clear guidance on the information and documentation they will need to submit during the application process.
2. Firms should inform the customer of the likely time it will take for a lending decision to be made. Following receipt of the required completed documentation, Firms should ensure that customers are kept informed of the progress of their application.
3. Firms should ensure that when a customer applies for a product, they are informed that checks may be made at Credit Reference Agencies and that information may also be provided to Credit Reference Agencies during the life of the borrowing.
4. Before providing any form of credit, granting a limit or increasing the customer's borrowing, Firms should assess, from the information available at the time, whether the customer will be able to repay it in a sustainable manner without incurring financial difficulty.
5. If a Firm offers a product which includes an indicative quotation facility, it should provide the customer with clear information as to what this is, and that any quotation provided will be linked to the customer's financial circumstances.
6. Firms providing a credit card product should present information about the main features of a credit card in summary box form, where appropriate.
7. At the point of sale, Firms should provide clear information to the customer regarding the key features of a product and any breakage or early repayment fees/costs associated with it. This information should be made available to the customer upon request, throughout the lifetime of the borrowing.
8. Firms should inform the customer if any security, for example, a guarantee/debenture/indemnity, is required to support the borrowing or other liabilities and the reason why. The level of security required by the Firm should be appropriate to the amount borrowed.
9. Firms should ensure that the customer is provided with clear information on the circumstances under which the security will be released. The security should not be relied upon beyond the life of the borrowing.

10. Firms should confirm the conditions of any facility in writing and recommend that the customer seeks independent advice before accepting the facility.
11. Firms should ensure that customers are kept informed of the estimated timescales which may apply to the issuing of facility letters or for obtaining any security that may be required to support the borrowing.
12. Before a customer accepts the facility, Firms should agree with the customer as to what form of monitoring information they will require about the business' performance and how often this will be required.
13. If an individual or a business agrees to be a guarantor or to provide an indemnity, the Firm should make the individual/business aware of their obligations under the agreement and that they have the option to seek legal advice, should they wish to do so.
14. Firms should not accept unlimited guarantees from an individual/business unless it is to support a customer's liabilities under a merchant agreement²; however other forms of unlimited third party security may be taken, if available.

² A contract between a business and a credit card service provider.

Product sale

Declined applications

Customer outcome: business customers whose applications are declined are provided with the right of appeal and are aware of the alternative sources of finance available.

Firms will achieve this: with systems and controls that promote the right behaviours to ensure that their employees, or their agents, are able to treat declined business customers fairly and appropriately.

1. If an application for a product is declined, the Firm should ensure that it understands the reason(s) behind it in order to be able to convey, where appropriate, this information to the customer. As a minimum, the customer should be provided with the primary reason in writing as to why they have been declined.
2. If the application was declined due to information obtained from a Credit Reference Agency search, Firms should direct the customer to obtain a copy of the information held about them from the relevant Credit Reference Agencies, prior to making any further applications.
3. Firms should inform the customer of their right of appeal and have fair and effective processes in place to review a decision to decline an application. These should, as a minimum, reflect the Lending Appeals process.
4. Firms may, where appropriate, signpost a declined customer to alternative sources of finance or third party. The customer should be made aware that the signposting is not an indication that any subsequent application would be successful
5. Firms who are designated banks under the Small and Medium Sized Business (Finance Platforms) Regulations 2015 should offer a customer declined for finance the opportunity for their details to be referred to government designated finance platforms.

Product execution

Customer outcome: information provided to business customers will be clear in terms of presentation and in clarifying any action that the customer needs to take. Business customer requests will be dealt with in a timely, secure and accurate manner.

Firms will achieve this: with systems, processes and controls that aim to provide an accurate view of the customer's relationship with the Firm and the relevant lending products they hold. This should be underpinned by appropriately skilled and knowledgeable staff.

1. If a customer has been provided with product that has a promotional feature, the customer should be notified of its expiry date/withdrawal in a clear and timely manner and how this will impact, where relevant, upon the costs associated with using the product.
2. Where a Firm offers a fixed rate lending product, clear information should be provided to the customer on any breakage costs associated with the product and how this will be calculated. The customer should have access to this information during the period of the borrowing.
3. Firms should provide customers with written notice of any change in interest rates or charges. This requirement does not apply where the increase relates to a published rate, for example, base rate or other benchmark.
4. Firms should have processes in place to deal with unauthorised credit card transactions. If customer fraud is suspected, the burden of proof is on the Firm to prove this is the case.
5. Firms will maintain the security of customers' data but may share information about the day-to-day running of a customer's account(s), including positive data, with credit reference agencies where the Firm has agreed to follow the principles of reciprocity.
6. Firms should ensure that where an individual provides a guarantee/indemnity or other security, they are able to request information regarding their current level of liability, as long as the customer gives their permission and confidentiality is not breached.
7. Firms should comply with the customer's request to co-operate with their professional adviser(s) during the lifetime of the relationship. All communication with the customer/their adviser will be undertaken in a clear and open manner.
8. Firms should ensure that any changes to the terms of the customer's agreement are fair and transparent. The customer should be provided with clear information regarding the reason for the changes and provided with a reasonable amount of time to seek further clarification, or where appropriate, alternative sources of finance.

9. Where a change is made to the relationship management process which will impact on the customer, Firms should provide the customer with advance notice, and the reason for the change. Where this will require action from the customer, they should be allowed sufficient time to complete this, taking into account the channel currently used.
10. Firms should comply with a customer's request to have access to the basic information held by the Firm about their products/accounts. The request should be dealt with in a timely and efficient manner.
11. Firms should ensure that requests for a Deed of Priority³ or Waiver are dealt with quickly and efficiently, in line with the BBA protocol.
12. Where appropriate, Firms should initiate a timely review of the customer's re-financing needs and an assessment of what needs to be in place ahead of any term loan expiry to maximise the prospect of successful re-financing.

³ Known as a Ranking Arrangement in Scotland.

Credit monitoring

Customer outcome: business customers will be supported by pro-active and reactive measures designed to identify signs of financial stress.⁴

Firms will achieve this: with systems and controls that are capable of identifying, across the relevant products held, where customers may be showing signs of financial stress at any point in the customer life-cycle, and pro-actively engaging with the customer to agree an appropriate solution.

1. Firms should ensure that the customer understands what information will be required to allow the Firm to monitor the business' performance and how and when this should be provided.
2. Firms should provide customers with the ability to opt-out of any unsolicited increase in their borrowing limit(s).
3. Firms should ensure that a sufficient level of monitoring of a customer's borrowing is undertaken to help determine if the customer is exhibiting signs of financial stress. Where relevant, appropriate support should be offered.
4. Firms should have triggers and processes in place to help identify customers who are showing signs of financial stress and should engage with these customers in a sensitive and supportive manner.
5. Firms should ensure that relevant customer facing employees and relevant third parties are sufficiently trained and skilled to help them to identify and deal with those customers who may be showing signs of financial stress.
6. Firms should undertake monitoring and assurance work to ensure that their policies and processes are designed and are operating effectively in identifying and supporting customers who are showing signs of financial stress.

⁴ The customer has not yet defaulted but information available to the Firm suggests that the business may be showing signs of being in financial difficulty.

Financial difficulty

Customer outcome: business customers in financial difficulty, or in the early stages of the collections process, will receive appropriate support and fair treatment, in order to help them deal with their debt(s) in the most suitable way.

Firms will achieve this: with systems and controls that are capable of identifying and, subsequently, supporting business customers in financial difficulty. Firms should be able to demonstrate that a sympathetic and positive approach has been applied when considering a customer's financial situation.

1. Firms should have triggers and processes in place to help identify customers who may be in financial difficulty and should act promptly and efficiently to address the situation with the customer.
2. Firms should have appropriate policies and procedures in place to identify and support vulnerable individuals where this impacts on the customer's ability to pay.
3. Customers identified as being in financial difficulty should be contacted and provided with clear information setting out the support available to them, the next steps and where relevant, with any action they are required to take. They should not be subject to harassment or undue pressure when discussing their financial situation.
4. Firms should demonstrate an empathetic approach to the customer's situation; listening to and acting upon information provided by the customer with a view to developing an appropriate and mutually acceptable solution.
5. Firms should apply an appropriate level of forbearance where, if after having made contact with the customer, it is clear that this would be appropriate for their situation. Firms should ensure that the solution offered does not exacerbate the customer's situation.
6. If a Firm is aware that a customer is, or suspects that they are, in financial difficulty but is able to uphold their borrowing commitments to the Firm, the customer should be given the opportunity to take action to turnaround the business.
7. Firms should work with and support a customer's turnaround plan where the Firm believes that it has a good chance of succeeding.
8. If a Firm is unable to support a turnaround plan, the customer should be notified of the reasons why and given a reasonable period of time to consider the options open to them.
9. Firms should guide the customer to appropriate advice which reflects their circumstances and level of borrowing. Where appropriate and available, the customer will be signposted to a third party offering free, impartial debt advice.

Portfolio management

Customer outcome: when debts are sold, impacted business customers will be treated fairly and all communications regarding the sale, and what this means for the customer, will be transparent and provided in good time. Where business customers are suffering from mental health or critical illness, the customer's debt will not be sold.

Firms will achieve this: with systems and controls to ensure that only eligible business customers are transferred to a third party and appropriate due diligence is undertaken on the Firm before a sale, which demonstrates that the customer will be treated fairly.

Unless otherwise stated, the following Standards apply to the sale of performing and non-performing debt

1. Firms should follow a robust due diligence process when selecting third parties for debt sale or debt collection activities to ensure that customers will continue to be treated fairly, in line with the requirements of the Standards of Lending Practice and the relevant contractual terms.
2. Firms should ensure that where the decision is made to sell a customer's debt and the contractual terms require the customer's consent to do so, this is obtained prior to any sale taking place.
3. Where an agreement allows for a Firm to sell a customer's debt without their consent, Firms should ensure that:
 - a. the customer is provided with reasonable notice that the Firm intends to sell their debt and provided with clear information as to what the sale means for the product(s) that they hold with the Firm and;
 - b. if the relationship with the customer will be serviced by the third party, full contact details for the purchaser are provided.
4. If an individual⁵ has provided appropriate and relevant notification of an ongoing mental health or critical illness that affects the customer's ability to repay their debts, or the Firm is aware the individual is terminally ill, the debt(s) should not be sold.
5. If a Firm sells non-performing debt, it should take appropriate and reasonable steps to ensure that the third party, to whom the customer's debt has been sold, deals with the customer in a manner that is consistent with the relevant requirements of the Standards of Lending Practice and the relevant contractual terms.
6. Where a debt is sold and during the lifetime of the original agreement⁶, a dispute arises between the customer and the third party which the parties are unable to resolve, Firms should ensure that they have processes in place to allow the customer access to the Firm's complaints procedure.

⁵ A person who, when taking into account information available to the Firm about the how the business is structured and operates, is able to exert significant control over the way in which it is run.

⁶ Subject to industry practice on the retention of personal data under the Data Protection Act 1998.

Vulnerability

Customer outcome: inclusive products and services take into account the broad range of business customers to which they may apply and contain appropriate flexibility to meet the needs of customers who may be, or are in, a vulnerable situation. Where customers are identified as, or the Firm has reason to believe that they may be, vulnerable, appropriate adjustments are made to ensure that their individual circumstances are accommodated to enable the customer, or their authorised third party, to manage their account(s).

Firms will achieve this: with systems and controls that are capable of assisting in the identification of customers who are, or may be, in a vulnerable situation, and having appropriate measures, training, referral points and skilled staff to deal appropriately with the customer once identified

The following Standards have been drafted to support Firms in identifying and addressing situations where an individual within a business either is, or the Firm has reason to suspect that they may be, vulnerable. These Standards can be applied to a sole trader, partnership or to an individual within a limited company. The impact of the individual's vulnerability on the business customer's relationship with their Registered Firm will depend on a number of non-exhaustive factors such as: the legal structure of the business, its sophistication, the role and level of responsibility of the individual within it and the extent of the individual's vulnerability. Firms will be at different stages of developing an approach to business customers and vulnerability and the applicability of the following standards will depend on the individual circumstances of the person.

- Reference to an individual means a person who, when taking into account information available to the Firm about the how the business is structured and operates, is able to exert significant control over the way in which it is run.
- Reference to vulnerability is in relation to the individual rather than the business itself, for example, a business in financial difficulty would not necessarily be considered to be vulnerable for the purposes of these Standards.

1. Firms should have a vulnerability strategy, which defines its approach to the identification and treatment of individuals considered to be vulnerable, through whichever channel the customer chooses to engage.
 2. Firms should undertake monitoring and assurance work to ensure that the vulnerability policies, processes and controls are designed and operating effectively and delivering fair customer outcomes.
 3. Firms should have policies and processes governing the identification and fair treatment of individuals in vulnerable circumstances. These should take into account: the channel, where the individual is within the customer journey and the varying nature and degrees of permanence of different vulnerabilities.
 4. a. Firms should ensure that their employees and their agents are sufficiently trained to help them to identify vulnerability and deal with the individual in accordance with their policies and processes, with appropriate escalation points, where the circumstances require this.

- b. When an individual is identified as potentially vulnerable, a Firm should ensure that its employees or its agents have appropriate referral and escalation points and are aware of how to access them.
5. Where appropriate, Firms should develop triggers and management information to assist employees in the identification and subsequent monitoring of individuals who may be vulnerable.
 6. Where a Firm is developing a new product, or reviewing an existing product, it should consider vulnerability as part of the design or review process, paying regard to target market, clarity, accessibility and the operation of the product.
 7. Firms' sales policies and processes should take account of the impact vulnerability may have on an individual's ability to make an informed decision about a product, and provide relevant support during the application process.

Governance and oversight

Customer outcome: business customers will receive a fair outcome when taking out a credit product and throughout the whole customer lifecycle, wherever the interaction with the customer takes place.

Firms will achieve this: with processes, controls and governance arrangements that ensure that there is effective senior management oversight of the Firm's achievement of the customer outcomes contained in the Standards of Lending Practice for business customers

1. Firms should have adequate governance, policies, processes, management information and controls to enable effective oversight of adherence to standards and delivery of fair customer outcomes.
2. Firms should have an effective risk management framework appropriate to the size of the Firm to ensure that the Standards of Lending Practice are achieved.
3. Firms should ensure that their employees and their agents are adequately trained to deliver the Standards of Lending Practice's customer outcomes, and that any incentive schemes are driving the right behaviours to ensure fair customer outcomes.
4. Firms should have systems in place to ensure that the Firms' employees and agents are promoting products in a clear and transparent way.
5. Firms should have systems in place to ensure that any failure to adhere to the Standards of Lending Practice are identified, and assessed for materiality and root cause. Where the materiality threshold is met, these are reported to the LSB and remediated in a timely manner.
6. Firms should have processes in place to identify when changes to the Standards of Lending Practice are made and to ensure that these are effectively incorporated within policies, processes and systems.
7. Firms should ensure that when systems or processes are changed, or products are introduced or changed, the impact on meeting the Standards of Lending Practice is adequately assessed.
8. Firms should ensure that the product design stage takes into account internal and external risks which could impact upon a customer's ability to maintain their repayments so that new products do not lead to unsustainable borrowing.
9. Firms should undertake both post-launch and cyclical product reviews to ensure that their products are, and remain, fit for purpose.
10. Where part of the credit process/life cycle is outsourced, Firms should:
 - a. undertake effective and robust due diligence in selecting a third party to ensure that it can meet the Standards of Lending Practice and deliver the required customer outcomes; and
 - b. exercise effective ongoing oversight of the third party to ensure that it is meeting the Standards of Lending Practice and delivering the required customer outcomes.

11. Firms should have a robust complaints management process in place to deal with Standards of Lending Practice-related complaints and to undertake root cause analysis [DISP].
12. Firms should assign an appropriately skilled and senior individual(s) with clear accountability for overseeing that the Standards of Lending Practice are being adhered to and customer outcomes achieved, and for ensuring that remedial action is instigated where this is not happening.
